School Lands and Funds

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

Sir: It appears from the press that the Governor, Secretary and Treasurer of the State refuse to pay over the school funds in the State Treasury to the County Treasurers as directed by [illegible] of the Act of October 20, 1868, upon the ground that such section is in conflict with the Constitution of the State.

The question involves the management of the school fund and is of permanent interest to the public, irrespective of party politics or [illegible]. Section 2 of Article VIII of the Constitution provides that "The proceeds of all the lands which have been or may hereafter be granted to this State for educational purposes [illegible] shall be set apart as a separate [illegible] fund to be called the Common School Fund."

It is plain from this language that the State neither has or can receive any lands for educational purposes which do not come within the provisions of this section and the proceeds of which do not belong to this Common School Fund.

Let us see now whether the Constitution has made any absolute provision for the sale of these lands and the disposition of the fund arising therefrom, or has left the subject to the discretion or caprice of the legislative assembly.

Section 5 of Article VIII provides that—"The Governor, Secretary of State and State Treasurer shall constitute a board of commissioners for the sale of school and university lands, and for the investment of the funds arising therefrom and their powers and duties shall be such as may be prescribed by law." But for the clause which I have italicised, I suppose no one would maintain that this provision left any power whatever over the subject in the legislature except so much as might be necessary and proper to prescribe the manner and circumstances under which this board might sell these lands and invest these funds.

Of course, whatever the Constitution says, as above, may "be prescribed by law," is so far under the power of the assembly. That is the legal signification of the phrase.

The enquiry is therefore confined to the question, does the authority vested in the Assembly to prescribe "the powers and duties" of this board, when engaged in selling school lands and investing school funds, give it also power to provide that any other person or persons shall or may do either or both of these things. If it does, then the legislature [illegible] board so as to abolish it.

It is reasonable to presume that if it had been the intention of the framers of the Constitution to give the Assembly the power to supersede this board by the appointment or designation of any one else to exercise its powers or perform its duties at any time, it would have been expressed directly. For instance, Section 1 of Article VIII provides that—"The Governor shall be Superintendent of Public Instruction and his powers and duties, in that capacity, shall be such as may be prescribed by law." But it was not supposed that this gave the Assembly power to provide directly or indirectly that any one else than the Governor should be Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Accordingly in the same section it is expressly provided that after five years from the adoption of the Constitution the Assembly might provide for the election of a separate Superintendent of Instruction.

Section 1 of Article VII of the Constitution provides that the judicial power of the State shall be vested in certain courts, whose jurisdiction is to be defined and regulated by law. Now this power to regulate the exercise of this judicial power would not be construed to authorize the Assembly to vest judicial power elsewhere than in these courts or some of them. Beyond doubt it may prescribe the mode of procedure by which such courts shall be allowed to exercise such judicial power, but there its power ends.

So it seems to me in the case of the Board of Commissioners of School Lands and Funds. The Legislature is the judge of the policy or impolicy of selling the lands or investing the proceeds, and of course may prescribe upon what terms and time, and upon what conditions and security school lands may be sold or the proceeds thereof loaned or invested by this Board, but it has no power to provide that any one else shall sell a rood of it, or [illegible] a dollar of the proceeds.

The framers of the Constitution knew by experience that if the custody and management of this fund was left to the absolute discretion of the Assembly, that there would be a constant struggle for its possession, which would probably result in its mismanagement and loss. Therefore they intended and provided that in the sale of the school land and the management of the proceeds, whatever regulations the Assembly might prescribe on the subject, the execution of them should be in the hands of this State Board, chosen by the whole people of the State and not otherwise.

Section 6 of the act of October 20, 1868, under which the claim is made to have this State common school fund scattered and parceled out among the County Treasurers for safe keeping and investment provides that:

"The Board of [illegible] Commissioners [illegible] shall pay over all moneys now in their hands or that may arise from the sale of the said school or university lands to the County Treasurers [illegible] by said Treasurers, etc."

This section calls upon the Board to wholly [illegible] the power conferred upon it by the Constitution as to the investment of these funds [illegible] county treasurers of the State. If it does not mean this, then it means nothing. This being so, it is in conflict with the Constitution and therefore void and not to be obeyed by any one.

Besides this fund is the property of the State and not of the counties, of the whole people and not of any part of them. When they are [illegible] the proper custodian of the funds of the State is the State Treasurer. He gives bonds to the State and performs the duties of his office under the supervision and inspection of the State. At each session of the Assembly it has the opportunity to examine the affairs of the office and see whether or not the school fund is [illegible].

But if the funds of the State, whether applicable to the support of schools or otherwise, are to be hawked and peddled about the country among the various County Treasurers, who change every two years, no one knows where or when, then it is very uncertain how long there will be any fund to invest.

Section [illegible] of Article VIII of the Constitution [illegible]

Provision shall be made by law for the distribution of the [illegible] among the several counties of the State in proportion to the number of children resident therein [illegible] of four and twenty years.

This [illegible] the Constitution never intended that the common school fund itself should be distributed among the counties for control and management.

Independent of the constitutional question the Act is a very unwise one and ought never to have been passed. Such legislation is the work of local demagogues who seek to thrive on politics by heeding the shrieks of locality [illegible] their county rather than the good of the whole people. They assume that the primary object in creating the common school fund is to furnish capital to those who need or want it rather than to promote the cause of public education. But this is a palpable and selfish error. The object of loaning the fund is to provide an income for the support of common schools, and not to accommodate borrowers. [illegible] no one has a right to complain if the whole fund were safely and profitably [illegible] person or in one county. It would [illegible] still if it were invested in United States securities and the expense and risk of loaning it in small sums on short time avoided.

Again the test by which this Act determines the proportion in which this fund shall be distributed among the counties is a very singular one. The distribution instead of being made in proportion to population in the counties, must be in proportion to the amount of the school lands therein. Now most of the school lands have been located under the 500,000 acre grant since 1860 and therefore in a large proportion outside of the settled portions of the State. Under this rule the out of the way and unsettled counties would get the lion's share because in them the lands except Sections 16 and 36 are in the greater part located. Now in these counties we may naturally expect that county treasurers, bondsmen and borrowers or mortgages are most uncertain as to permanent or durable solvency and value.

The whole Act is a very imperfect one and evidently prepared without proper consideration or knowledge. The verb "shall be loaned" in Section 6 has no nominative, and whether it should be read "the School Commissioners" or "the moneys" shall be loaned, is a nice question—too much so to be left to the independent and unaided judgment of a score and a half of county treasurers.

It directs "the Board of School Commissioners" to pay over the moneys now in their hands, but there is no such Board, nor is there any Board that have the school funds in their hands. Such moneys are in the custody of the Treasurer of the State, when not invested.

It is more than questionable if the Act is not void, because not passed in the mode prescribed by Section 22 of Article IV of the Constitution. Section 6 is a direct and palpable attempt to revise and amend Section 12 of the Act of October 22 1864 but no reference is made to it. The Act contains a clause purporting to repeal all Acts and parts of Acts inconsistent with itself, without naming or specifying them, which amounts to nothing.

Sections 6 and 12 of the two Acts are upon the same subject—the loaning of the school fund—and in partial conflict. Yet they are both left upon the statute book for the people and Courts to find out how much of the one is displaced or superseded by the other. This being a needless trouble, [illegible] the Constitution required that Section 12 should be re-enacted as amended which has not been done. Consequently the attempt to change it was a failure. D

COLLECTIONS—THE ALABAMA CLAIMS

ASTORIA, Feb 16 1872

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

SIR: In the DAILY OREGONIAN of the 17th under "Early Oregon History" 1832 should be 1842, and 1833 should be 1843, in both cases four instead of three. In the fifth line above the words, "old document relating to the early history of Oregon," the word "procure" should be prove.

I see by the dispatches and various papers that England is considerably excited over the Alabama question. It is not justice to ourselves to let them have all the say in the matter. Will you do your readers the favor to quote the following from a book called "Message and Documents 1862-63," [illegible] page 190? The extract is a letter from Charles Francis Adams our Minister to England:

"The breaking out of the insurrection has brought to light the existence of national feelings in England towards them (the United States), the strength of which had scarcely been suspected in America. As the struggle has gone on, the nature and extent of them has become so clear and unmistakable as to defy all disavowal. Having their root in the same apprehension of the force of a foreign state which exists in the case of France, they take the same direction towards efforts to curtail, if not to neutralize its energies. The popular sentiment of Great Britain as now developed, should be a warning to the statesmen of America by which to regulate their action at least for two generations. It dictates the necessity for union at home far more imperatively even than the wretchedness which (September 12, 1862) fills the country with grief from end to end. It ought to open the eyes of all the honest but deluded citizens who have imagined that in resisting the authority of the Federal Government they are only endeavoring to substitute one kind of domestic sovereignty for another. The fact is they are ignorantly conducing to the interposition of a wholly foreign and opposite influence, which has no sympathy in common with America, and which seeks only to boost its own interests more firmly upon the [illegible] of those of other nations.

To attempt to counteract this policy by angry remonstrance or a resort to [illegible] would be [illegible] worse. The true remedy would be to effect the restoration of peace and harmony, the revival of our habits of productive industry, and the return of vigor to the action of our [illegible] spirit, confidence at home and [illegible] as well as respect among [illegible] abroad."

I close [illegible] the following paragraph in this letter of Minister Adams. He says:

But if it should turn out that the malignant spirit among us prove to have so far confirmed their authority among [illegible] countrymen in some quarters as to render these results impracticable, then does the [illegible] of British [illegible] question for the consideration of America. They point significantly to the [illegible] agency [illegible] to us as closely as possible [illegible] British policy [illegible] may hence become a ready instrument to effect the object of finally annulling [illegible]. Thus hemmed in between the North and the South, both almost equally [illegible] British policy, the United States may come to inspire that dread of their expansion which seems to haunt the minds of the statesmen of the present day. The mode of counteracting these dangerous tendencies is deserving of most careful consideration. To permit the establishment of such authority to the south of us as that indicated seems to be [illegible] of the question. It would be far wiser to determine that rather than this the social [illegible] which it is designed to maintain it should be once for all removed. Whatever might be the hesitation to act while the question remained confined within purely domestic considerations it will cease the moment that any extraneous element of foreign agency should be introduced.

"Great Britain, after widening the moral consideration of the slavery question for many years for the purpose of stimulating our domestic dissensions, cannot be allowed to complete her work by upholding a slave born authority as a perpetual check upon our prosperity. All the considerations of our safety in the distant future forbid the idea. The whole case changes its character the moment we come to look at it in this new light. Its moral becomes not less momentous than its political aspects. The position of the two nations is thus made antagonistic on a great issue of principle, and the protection of the great idea of human liberty becomes more than ever before the bounden duty of the United States."

Mr Adams says in conclusion—"I have been led into this course of reflection insensibly by the incidental exposition of the gradually spreading antipathy to us among the people of this city (London) and Kingdom as it has been shown by the reception of General Pope's announcement that we have gained a victory. Here (in England) it is viewed in the light of a disaster, and great efforts are made to discredit it."

I [illegible] bluster and bellow as she did about our boundary question, and as she has about San Juan. It is to be hoped that our President will put a good long cigar in his mouth and smoke it out on that line. England did her best to injure us as a nation. Let her pay for it in full or take the consequences. Yours truly, W H G

THE TERRITORIES

A cemetery is projected at Kalama. Nobody has died at that city yet. Cause—too few live there.

Mrs. J. B. Frost, after demonstrating in her lectures at Puget Sound that the Government of the United States is doomed to perish speedily, has sailed for San Francisco and left it to its fate.

The Walla Walla Statesman from this time forth will question the Democracy of any man who does not fall into the ranks and support Judge McFadden as the Democratic candidate for Delegate. The Sage of Saunder's Bottom would run well in the sage brush country.

The name of the new Territory Congress is about creating has been changed from Ojibway to Pembina—a change for the better. If the inhabitants of that region hanker strongly after Indian names, Puget Sound might send them a "mish" or so, and then have enough left.

The Boise City Statesman of January 18th says: Thomas Bray's cabin was burglariously entered on Sunday evening and a bed spread and other articles, not of much value, carried off. The thieves missed $2 500 in coin and $1 000 in greenbacks, which were in the cabin at the time.

The Olympia Tribune says the assessment of Washington Territory the current year cannot by any possibility fall below $14 000,000, and four mills on that amount (the increased ratio of the late Assembly) will give $59 000 as the Territorial tax for this year. [illegible] pay the debt of the Territory besides.

Business at the Walla Walla Land Office has been rather slack during the past month. The principal portion of what has been done was in filing claims for settlers in Kittitas Valley. Notwithstanding the bad weather for some time past, quite a number of settlers have gone into that valley to make themselves permanent homes.

A letter from Yakima, dated Feb 2d, to the Vancouver Register gives this: There are a good many offering $100 per ton for hay, and can't get it for that. If the winter lasts three weeks longer they will lose all their cattle. There had been a foot of snow on the ground for seven weeks. Coldest weather had been 19 degrees below zero.

The Vancouver Register urges the construction of a plank road from that place to Portland, and adds: It is becoming daily more apparent that the individuality of Vancouver is departing and its claim to an independent existence must eventually give way. The sooner we recognize this fact the better we'll be off. We must look to Portland hereafter for fostering our infant enterprises, and should lose no opportunity to cultivate friendly relations with its citizens.

The Bellingham Bay coal mine was recently opened for the purpose of ascertaining the extent to which it had been flooded, when it was found filled up to the hight of about four hundred feet from the bottom of the lowest level. The result was astounding to many of the employees, who had been waiting for a resumption of operations on the part of the Company, and a large number of them are now leaving.

The Seattle Intelligencer says that Tuesday last J. A. McPhee residing on the Snoqualmie, met with a very serious accident. He was shaving a [illegible] with a drawing knife having one end of it against his breast and the other resting on the ground. While so engaged, and just before shaving down the proper size, the stick broke, the drawing knife came in contact with his knee just below the knee pan, cutting off the large tendon, and laying open about half of the knee joint.

A Seattle paper has this: We learn from reliable sources that it is intended by parties here and in San Francisco to establish a line of vessels between that city and Seattle to accommodate the merchants in the matter of sure freights at a much lower rate of charges than has been heretofore the case. The company purpose placing on this line three or four first class schooners of 150 or 200 tons burden—strong, fast sailing crafts—which will be calculated to make regular stated trips to and from the above named ports alone, leaving San Francisco every ten days.

The Chicago Relief Fund

A dispatch from Chicago, dated Feb 5th gives the annexed interesting particulars in regard to the relief fund for that city:

The Chicago Relief and Aid Society have prepared an elaborate report, showing the amount of contributions that have been received from all quarters in aid of sufferers by the fire specifying the States, counties and towns with the amounts from each. The grand total is nearly three and a quarter millions in cash, and this does not include the A. T. Stewart fund from New York nor the munificent sums raised by the Chamber of Commerce of that city, nor the large sums [illegible] one hundred thousand dollars each) donated by the cities of Cincinnati and St Louis and distributed through their own agencies. California is credited with $[illegible] 30. San Francisco gave $[illegible] 756 98, Sacramento $21 117 53 and Oakland $11 215. The contributions from the State of New York, exclusive of the items heretofore mentioned, foot up $[illegible] 71. Massachusetts gave $[illegible] 000. Oregon (Portland) $14 000. Colorado $1[illegible] 000. England, $60 000. Ireland $68 000. France 570 000 francs. Germany $[illegible] 000. In addition to the money contributions, gifts of food, clothing etc have been received from hundreds of towns, cities and villages all over the Union and from Canada, England and Berlin, Prussia, amounting in value to many thousands of dollars. Sacramento, Stockton and Georgetown California have each made liberal donations of this kind. At the date of the report Jan 6th there were 9 896 families receiving general relief such as fuel, food and clothing. Of these only 982 are Americans, 3 311 being Irish, 3 [illegible] Germans, the balance divided among every nationality on the face of the earth.

A [illegible] waiter who had twice [illegible] a traveler to inform him that breakfast was ready and a third time broke his slumber by attempting to pull off the bed clothes, explained [illegible] "Massa, if you isn't gwine to git up, I must hab de sheet anyhow [illegible] for de table cloth."

Just before a wedding ceremony was to be performed in a church in New Albany, Ind., the other day, the prospective bride slipped out into the vestibule and her lover's entreaties failed to win her back, and he with the large audience went away disappointed.

OREGON

Last week the Salem mills shipped to Portland seventy tons of flour.

The roll of Oregon Pioneers at Astoria now contains over one hundred names.

Abraham Rand of Eugene City has been arrested on a charge of forging an order for $21 50 on Dr Sharples.

All the difficulties between the railroad and Campbell Chrisman, of Lane county, have been adjusted and settled.

A letter from Yamhill county says: The Democrats are boarding eight men at Wheatland, to help reduce the Republican majority at the next election.

The Eugene Journal says: "It is rumored that it is in contemplation to establish a bank in this city." A bank of "Scriptural name"—Faro—we presume.

We are informed that at a meeting of the Board of Land Commissioners at Salem on the 15th, a large number of contestants were present. Nothing however, was done, and the business was laid over till the next meeting.

Two boys, Willie Pengra and Johnnie Kelly, while in the skating rink at Springfield, a few evenings since, got into a quarrel and scuffle, and both tumbled out of the second story window to the ground. An arm or two was broken.

The Statesman says: The claims of Walter Bros., of Portland, against the Commercial Hotel Association for furniture furnished to the Chemeketa Hotel, have been settled by compromise, as Messrs. Walter Bros. have accepted the sum of $2,000 and relinquished the company's note.

A letter from Union county to the Mountaineer says: There seems to be considerable anxiety on the part of those whose duty it was to take charge of the "Political Vineyard" during the absence of the "Great Bricklayer," in order to secure men to attend the Democratic Convention in your city who will go for the "mud mixer" straight.

A Lane paper says: We understand there are quite a number of Democrats seeking the nomination for the county clerkship. Among the names already mentioned are Messrs. Cooper, Ward, Lemley, Amis, Arnold, Osburn and Thatcher. These gentlemen and a few others, we believe, are the only Democrats who are not candidates for sheriff.

A Eugene paper has the following cheerful paragraph: "The future of our city government, in a financial view, seems to be brightening. Some of the young men in town have manifested a greater degree of interest in its management than heretofore, and have contributed somewhat to its support." That means fines for "drunks," and the like.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

It is said that at Victoria women are legally liable to serve on juries. Twelve years ago, however, the Chief Justice issued an order exempting them, and the order has never been revoked by his successor.

Already Victorians are talking of bridging the straits so as to connect their island with the main land. It is a case of railroad connection. But those who are discussing it are a quarter of a century ahead of the event.

It is reported at Victoria that a large vessel, name unknown, has been wrecked on the west coast of Vancouver's Island about sixty miles from Victoria. A vessel has been sent from Esquimalt to the scene of the wreck.

A Nanaimo letter says: The great corner stone of Anglo Saxon progress and power appears to be on the wane in this community. The public school has been closed, "Ichabod" written over the door, and three hundred children are left to pick up their education on the streets as best they may.

A Thrilling Incident.

The Salem Statesman of Saturday contains this:

A gentleman living some twenty miles up the river, with his little son scarce five years of age, on Thursday evening last, attempted to cross over the river as there were relations residing on the opposite side whom he was desirous of visiting. For this purpose a small boat was brought into requisition, a neat little craft which he had ferried over a thousand times in safety, and in which he had always possessed the strictest faith. The heavy rains of that day and of several days previous had changed the quiet placid stream to an angry, sullen flood, sweeping along with frightful rapidity, threatening death to whatever should offer resistance to its terrible wrath. The little child was given a seat, the boat was unhooked, gently pushed from the shore, when the father grasped the oars and set out for the other shore. The boat had not proceeded but a few yards when she struck a snag, and in a moment assumed an inverted position, with its occupants struggling in the flood. The child clung to the upturned boat while the father swam for the shore to secure another boat with which to rescue his only child from a watery grave. As quick as his strength would allow he gained the shore, severed the boat from its fastenings, and careful to shun the object of his previous danger started out with the hope of overtaking his child. This he did in the brief space of a few minutes. When taken ashore the child was almost lifeless, and had it remained in the water a few moments longer, no medical skill could have restored it.

A simple and successful treatment of diphtheria may be found in the use of lemon juice. Gargle the throat freely with it, at the same time swallow a portion of it so as to reach all the affected parts. A French physician claims that he saved his own life with this pleasant remedy.

Odious Comparisons

According to the Herald there is a sharp contrast between the conduct of Gen Grant and that of Jeff Davis Gen Lee and Andy Johnson the said contrast consisting in the alleged fact that Grant degrades his position and brings scandal upon the country by receiving presents while the other three persons mentioned had too much personal self respect and respect for the dignity and delicacy of official position to do anything of the kind

The shock to our neighbor s feelings from this contrast proceeds from his own imagination rather than from facts The only trouble with him is that all these stories about Grant taking presents are of Democratic invention. Nobody can mention a single instance in which he has done anything of the kind since he became President It is really to be regretted that our neighbor permits his feelings to be so outraged and scandalized by fables of Democratic invention If he will seriously examine his own stock of knowledge, and try to tell what he actually knows about this alleged conduct of President Grant s which so grieves him, he will find how unhappy he has long been without real cause Imaginary woes are generally more troublesome than real ones

Of course it is not to be expected that any person will ever reach in Democratic estimation the exalted pinnacle of virtue on which the Herald places Jefferson Davis and General Lee According to our neighbor's way of thinking, they stand on unapproachable hights of political integrity, public virtue, private dignity moral grandeur and unselfish patriotism Since ordinary mortals are unfit to be compared with these illustrious men, the unrelenting soldier who led the national armies to victory over them and snuffed out these lights of Democratic admiration, is especially at a disadvantage in any comparison betweeen them and him which may be made by the Democratic mind. Andy Johnson's place in Democratic esteem is next after theirs , for though he "went back on" Davis and Lee at a critical time, yet, after the war was over, he tried to place the control of the country in their hands, and so partially atoned for his "error " As the Herald has so much veneration for Davis and Lee, it may be expected also to admire the "dignity" and "self respect" evinced by Andy Johnson, in "sharp contrast" with whose inebriate and passionate eructations, called "speeches," must seem the quiet demeanor of General Grant No, no ; it is not to be expected that General Grant will compare in any respect, in our neighbor's estimation, with these men He showed his "brutality" by whipping them in the war, and his "moral inferiority" has been notorious ever since! And "comparisons are odious "

Pother and Bother.

In the last Legislature, the members of the eastern counties asked for assistance for building a road from Portland to the Dalles, so that communication between the country east and west of the mountains should not be cut off in winter The plan that was presented for aiding this road we did not approve but it was certain that the enterprise was as deserving of assistance as other enterprises to which the "ring" were proposing to make grants out of the school lands. It was decided, however, by the dynasty that the road to the Dalles could not receive a grant. The managers at Salem wanted all the fund for themselves. Having taken what they desired for the locks at Willamette Falls, they shut down the appropriation, and left Eastern Oregon without its road We observe now that some of the ring organs, after two years' silence, are beginning to sympathize with that part of the State in this behalf, and to demand that a grant be made for the road. An election is coming on, and it is thought best to try cajolery with the Democracy of Eastern Oregon The western division of the State is strongly Republican, and the eastern counties are looked to by the dynasty to furnish the votes to perpetuate their power. Hence this revival of long-slumbering zeal in behalf of Eastern Oregon. But, as we said on a former occasion, it seems very absurd for that Democratic section of the State to complain. Why can t the Democracy up there be content with keeping the ring down here in power and ask no troublesome questions? It is pother and bother, and should be rebuked.

A correspondent, whose letter appears in another part of this paper, cites proofs to show that during the rebellion in this country there was a strong feeling of antipathy in England toward the United States. This is unquestionable, but it cannot cut much of a figure in deciding the claims for indemnity before the Geneva Conference. We can scarcely make England pay for her antipathy to us, though it grew out of selfish human nature She wanted to see America divided, just as a large portion of our people would be glad to see the British Empire dissevered In urging our claims, it is well enough to remember what feelings England exhibited towards us in our extremity, but our demands for indemnity can include only those losses which are directly traceable to her active assistance of the rebellion

It appears that some of the Eastern papers of Democratic proclivities, with their usual enterprise in manufacturing charges of fraud and peculation have recently been asserting that frauds have occurred in the stamp department of the Internal Revenue Bureau, amounting to several millions of dollars The story was presented with all the details that usually accompany the lie with circumstance But it was spoiled a day or two afterwards by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, who pronounced the whole story false, and showed that it was a miserable and exceedingly clumsy fabrication. The stamp accounts of the Bureau are examined and balanced monthly and the system is such that discrepancy is impossible

The Oregon City Enterprise pokes its nose into Portland affairs It says that the Common Council of this city is a 'jobbing institution, and that it makes the government of this loyal town a very expensive one But of course the Enterprise omitted to state that the heaviest item of expense is Grover s police for which the Common Council is in no way responsible It cannot even fix the number of police or control the expenditures therefor. It is a handsome thing, indeed, for the Democratic party to fasten this leech on a Republican city and then to taunt Republicans with the assertion that their city government is expensive and extravagant!

British Expressions on the American Claims

On the 6th instant the British Parliament assembled at London and the Queen s speech was delivered Her Majesty s remarks on the Treaty of Washington and the Geneva Conference were very brief and moderate They were these

> The arbitrators appointed in accordance with the Treaty of Washington for the purpose of amicably settling the Alabama claims, held their first meeting at Geneva Cases were tried before the arbitrators on behalf of each party to the treaty In the case so submitted by America large claims were included which were understood on our part not to be within the province of the arbitrators On this subject I have caused a friendly communication to be made to the Government of the United States

As soon as the speech was delivered Mr Disraeli rose and addressed the House upon it We copy from the telegraphic report

> Disraeli animadverted at some length upon the Treaty of Washington for the faults of which he blamed Earl Granville and Gladstone In view of the developments which had been made at the assembly of arbitrators at Geneva, Disraeli wanted to know why the Government was exulting over the edification it had given Parliament on the subject The royal speech was signally unsatisfactory, and showed, in his opinion, that the Government still lacked a proper appreciation of the question at issue between England and the United States The American claims were greater than those which would follow a total conquest They were preposterous, impractical and if admitted would be fatal to the power and honor of England Yet, said Disraeli, sneeringly, 'the whole subject is disposed of in one brief paragraph of the royal speech'

Mr Gladstone replying said that England was ready to make every concession short of compromising the national honor to establish friendly relations with America, and to set an example to be followed by other nations The Premier added

> Henceforth the Government is ready to explain everything in connection with the treaty but it will not admit that it unwittingly made a mistake The paragraph in the treaty is the only fair and unmistakable interpretation of the treaty He could if he desired refer to the preposterous character of the American demands, which of itself proved their absurdity for they were such as no people in the last extremity of war or the lowest depths of national misfortune, with the spirit of the people of England in their hearts would ever submit to

This speech of Mr Gladstone s was severely commented on next day by the British press as needlessly offensive to the United States It was doubtless an effort to rescue his administration from the embarrassment to which it was subjected by the charge that it had been circumvented by the United States in the management of the affair and to recover his popularity by taking strong grounds against the claims advanced by the United States. In other words, the speech was made to the British public for a partisan purpose Mr Gladstone doubtless thought that it wouldn't do to permit Mr Disraeli to "cut under" him on the subject The tone of the British press is, on the whole, more moderate than that of the party leaders

Amnesty

The Senate has been considering one amnesty bill , the House another The House bill removes political disabilities from all persons [illegible] the following classes:

> All persons who broke their oath to support the Constitution, as Postmasters or clerks to Postmasters, United States Marshals and Deputies, and Assistant United States Marshals; Judges of Probate and Judges of other courts of inferior jurisdiction in any State, and clerks or other officers of such courts, clerks and registers in Equity Courts, and Masters and Examiners in Chancery, Sheriffs and Deputy Sheriffs, Justices of the Peace, all municipal officers, including Mayors, Aldermen and other officers of any city, town or village, constables and other executive and administrative officers, who by law were elected to office previous to the rebellion, and whose general duties were restricted to city, county town village or parish for which they were elected; Provided, that the benefit of this act shall not extend to any person, although included, of classes who resigned their seats as members of Congress; who resigned as officers of the army and navy, and afterwards joined the rebellion or members of the convention of any State which adopted the ordinance of secession.

This bill, after being slightly amended, passed the House. In the Senate, on the 5th inst , the following proceedings took place

> Carpenter offered a substitute for Sumner s pending amendment (the supplementary civil rights bill), providing that if any common carriers or keepers of public places make any distinction in their accommodation in disrespect to any citizen on account of his race or color they shall be fined not less than $500 nor more than $5,000 for each offense.
> Carpenter said the difference between this and Sumner's bill was on two points First, the substitute omitted all reference to churches, and second, it denied the right of Federal interference upon the fact that the institutions were supported at the public expense and not, as Sumner's bill did, upon the mere fact of incorporation
> Norwood, of Georgia, argued against both Sumner's and Carpenter's amendments as unconstitutional and calculated to nullify the laws of several States prohibiting the intermarriage of whites and blacks
> Wilson said he would vote for Sumner's amendment, just because it went so far and in the clearest and most positive manner made all distinctions on account of color illegal in the United States He cited Massachusetts as a State which abolished the laws against the intermarriage of whites and blacks thirty years ago, and the dreadful results predicted had not followed He wished to see all laws based on difference of race abolished as unchristian, inhuman and undemocratic.
> Anthony hoped Sumner would accept Carpenter's amendment exempting churches from the bill He would vote to give colored people all civil rights, but he would not vote for the non conferring or denying or in any way interfering with religious rights
> Sumner advocated his own bill and called Carpenter's substitute an emasculated synonym It was feeble and incomplete, where the original was strong and complete He objected especially to the omission from the substitute of the provision enforcing the admission of colored citizens to the jury box, and he commented at length on criticism of Carpenter's substitute, and of Carpenter's disregard and disrespect for the Declaration of Independence in general, and particularly in offering these amendments
> Carpenter replied intimating that Sumner ranked the Declaration of Independence higher than the Constitution of the United States, and defending his (Carpenter's) amendment as a measure of justice, which didn't infringe upon the Constitution

This bill, as the telegraph advised us a few days ago, failed in the Senate It is doubtful whether any amnesty bill will pass both Houses this session No such bill should pass until Democrats cease their attacks on the constitutional amendments and other settlements of the war

The State Temperance Convention will assemble at Salem on Thursday next One of the objects of the Convention we learn will be to take measures to secure the passage of a law by which each precinct can prohibit or permit the sale of ardent spirits by a majority vote This proposition will be urged upon the Legislature It is reasonable and may be productive of good results But it is to be observed that in those communities where temperance reform is most needed this plan will be of little or no benefit since a majority will not vote for it while on the other hand in temperance communities where the proposition will carry by a large majority there is little need of prohibitory enactments

In the California Legislature a bill is pending which provides that the earnings of the wife shall not be liable for the debts of the husband It ought to pass

People up the Wallamet valley are still growling because California potatoes are so high It is shameful that California won't raise potatoes for our friends at a more reasonable figure.

"THE WORK GOES BRAVELY ON"—CASE NO 6001—SECOND SERIES.

Guadaloupe Mine, near San Jose Aug 16 1871

Drs A M Loryea & Co—For a long time I have been afflicted with Rheumatism in my hands and feet, the pains most of the time being very severe On the 7th of July I procured some of your UNK WEED REMEDY, and after taking only three bottles find that I am quite restored to health and strength I have had the Rheumatism for eleven (11) years, and think that the success of the "Unk" in curing a disease of so long standing, in so short a time, is very remarkable

As a tonic and appetizer I have never met with anything equal to the "UNK WEED REMEDY" During the time I was taking it I gained fifteen (15) pounds in weight Trusting that this certificate may be useful in inducing others afflicted as I was to try the UNK,

I remain, very truly yours,
JAMES T BROWN
fel lf Supt and Agent Guadaloupe Mine

REMOVAL NOTICE

On Tuesday F[illegible] 20th THE OREGONIAN will be removed to its new [illegible] corner of Front and Stark street

THE G STREET MATTER —The Herald says that the vacation of G Street where it touches the river is necessary for the expansion of our commerce and we agree with it. It is no answer to say if this be done it will be a precedent for a similar course in respect to all the streets of the city at their intersection with the river. To argue that if the foot of G Street be vacated for a railway depot a precedent will be established which will cause the foot of Washington or some other street to be vacated for a wood yard seems to us a singularly narrow and inconsequential sort of argument. It is a rather limited view to take of the great commercial interests of the country. A depot for all the railways centering at Portland will, it strikes us, be something more important to the commerce of the city and to its future growth and prosperity than a wood yard or a slip for the landing of a skiff or scow or a passage way for a dray. It is something more important, too, than the intangible value of the city's right to 'regulate' in relation to a few square feet of ground. The vacation of the foot of G street which has never been used as a street would not affect injuriously any public or private interests nor could it be considered in the mind of any sensible man a sufficient reason why any part of any other street should be vacated. The mere fact of vacating a street is not an argument in favor of vacating another—the reason for doing such a thing rests in every case in the public value of the street as a street and in the advantages to be gained to the public by its vacation. If the general good would be clearly promoted by the vacation of a street or part of a street, then it is good policy to vacate it—and vice versa. There might be a good and sufficient reason—apparent to every man's mind—for vacating G street and there might be no good reason whatever for vacating Washington street, or vice versa. The question of vacating any given street stands up on its own merits, and does not depend on precedent at all. Suppose that in consequence of the illiberal action of the City Council the railroad proprietors should conclude to make their depots and steamer landings at or below the city's northern boundary, which they could easily do, how would that affect public interests and convenience? Would it not clearly be detrimental to both? It is the duty of our city legislators to foster commerce and to assist it to expand, instead of balking it by narrow or petty measures, and to assist in fixing its central operations at the present city instead of driving them to other points. The resolution refusing the grant of the foot of G street is not calculated to render assistance in either of the respects mentioned.

FLOOD IN THE WALLAMET —The Wallamet river is already very high and is still rising. For twenty four hours ending at 6 o'clock last evening, the rise was equal to three feet and rate of rise was still an inch and a half per hour. During all day yesterday there was heavy driftwood running. About 11 o'clock A. M., the wreck of a [illegible] bridge went by, which was afterwards ascertained to have been the Clackamas bridge. At this city, the rise being very rapid, and the water being nearly up to the water side [illegible], the merchants had rather a busy Sabbath of it getting their goods up to the next floor or to other storehouses. Word came down from Mil[waukie] early in the day that the water was within three feet of the mill floor, and rising nearly five inches an hour. The floor was jammed full of flour in urgent demand.

The morning express train from Eugene failed to get through. Portions of the country above [illegible] were under water. The Calapooia prairie, this side of Harrisburg, was almost like a vast lake. The Santiam river was very high, and running a tremendous, roaring torrent. The bottom land on the other side of the river was overflowed. The train came on down till it reached Mill creek valley where a break was found, the waters of an [illegible]-drain having cut away the bank. The train went back to Jefferson for timbers to repair the [illegible]. This having been accomplished, the locomotive crossed when the track gave way again throwing the baggage car off. It was however dragged out of the mud and placed on the track this side of the break. The passengers were then brought over and, leaving the passenger coaches on the other side, the locomotive and passenger car came [illegible] the passengers as best they could, to Oregon City. The Molalla river was overflowed and a large body of water was running through the timber bottom on the south side. At a little [illegible] this side of Oregon City, the passengers had to take boats to connect with a locomotive and passenger coach sent up from East Portland to a point just beyond the Clackamas bridge. The Clackamas was very high and carrying down much drift wood, but it was thought the railroad bridge was safe. No trains will be sent to-day.

TRIP ON THE OREGON CENTRAL —A friend who has just returned from the front on the Oregon Central Railroad furnishes the following 'notes of the trip':

"Left Portland Friday evening at 5 o'clock, [illegible] d south by west for Hillsboro and Cornelius; one mile above Fourth street bridge obliged to double up, passenger car left behind for one hour; in one hour more reached the Summit; remained here till 10 30; car off the track; conductor came to the rescue, said he could take the passengers on with locomotive, tender and box car; passengers gave him a vote of thanks—said he was a brick; had to make our way over a steep hill, the best way we could, to reach the locomotive; passengers had to be lifted into box car about eight feet high, fifteen passengers—thirteen gentlemen and two ladies, had a good time from this on to Hillsboro, where most of the passengers got off; arrived there at 11 40, no carriages; flag station half a mile from the town; raining hard; mud and water six to twelve inches deep, made the hotel at 12, midnight, Turpin up to snuff, had lunch ready.

"Sunday morning at 7 30 left Hillsboro; made "deep cut," near Slavin's at 8 30; locomotive ran off track; at 12 o'clock conductor again came to the rescue—said he had got a conveyance for six to Portland, gave us our choice to ride or walk, Quimby and Horn took the chance to walk; passengers again gave conductor vote of thanks; six miles, the way we came to town, walked 300 yards in the mud to get to the wagon; thought ourselves in luck to find a wagon, started on our way rejoicing; half a mile the other side of Fulton, or Red House, found a land slide across the road; passengers unloaded themselves and walked over the mountain to Red House; driver got horses swamped in the land slide; took one hour to get em out; 3 o'clock P M arrived at Portland at 3 45; that's all, such is life on the O & C Railroad; the railroad, however, is good as could be expected."

CERTAINLY A HOAX —The Salem Statesman says: "We mentioned some days ago that Governor Grover had telegraphed to San Francisco to have the Chief of Police there board the steamer on its arrival and arrest the Wisconsin man and his prisoner, supposed to have been captured at Oregon City without due process of law. That officer replies that he found no such Wisconsin man and no such prisoner on board the steamer, and could not learn that any such person had taken passage at Portland. The whole story is undoubtedly a canard, and whoever got it up deserves great credit for having humbugged several Portland editors. We published the report at the time because it was current on the streets, but we had reason to believe within two or three days that it was a hoax and we so pronounced it. Lately we have about come to the conclusion that it was merely a nicely devised trick to enable Governor Grover to make himself heard of outside of Oregon."

LECTURE —We are informed that ex Governor Curry will deliver the next lecture in the course of the Washington Debating Society—February 27th. His subject will be 'The Pioneers.' The Governor was himself among the pioneers of Oregon, and will be able to present many interesting reminiscences of the early days the oldest inhabitants etc. The lecture will be one of the most interesting of the course.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD SURVEY —Gen Sprague informs us that the surveying party lately in charge of Captain Maxwell will to-day commence the preliminary survey of the Northern Pacific Railroad from Kalama eastward. No definite action of the company in the matter of location is expected however to be taken before spring.

WATER MAIN BROKEN —The Fourth street water main was broken again yesterday by the cave of a bank. Attempts were made to repair it but without success and the flood from the main was so great and doing so much damage to the streets, that it was found necessary to shut the water off at the reservoir. The pipe will be repaired, however, early this morning.

REPORT OF THE GRAND JURY

The Grand Jury having completed its labors submitted to the Circuit Court, on Saturday, the following report:

To Hon W. W. Upton, Judge of the Circuit Court for the County of Multnomah. Inasmuch as it has ever been the custom of the Grand Jury upon their final adjournment to make a report, we, the Grand Jury for the February term, beg leave to submit the following:

As the Grand Jury at the last term of Court made so full and complete a report, and their finding the County Hospital and Insane Asylum in such satisfactory condition, that we deem it an unnecessary expenditure of the county money to again visit these places at this time. We have visited the County Jail, and find everything in such good order that the officers in charge are deserving of more than a complimentary notice.

We found nineteen persons confined therein—a majority of these serving out their sentence from the lower Court.

We also find, upon investigation, the confining of witnesses heretofore made, bound over to await the action of the Grand Jury, in the same apartment with criminals awaiting their transport to the Penitentiary, is not the fault of the officers in charge, but from the overcrowded condition of the jail and the want of proper apartments for persons of this kind.

We would recommend that the County Commissioners appoint a committee of competent persons to examine and enquire into the expenditure of the county's money in the Sheriff's office and that of the County Clerk's, and the committee be instructed to report to the County Court.

We make this recommendation for the following reasons: To make a thorough examination of the County records it would require a great many days of the Grand Jury's time, thereby incurring a great expense to the county. By a committee a full and correct report might be presented at a much less expense.

The Grand Jury have been in session five days and have had thirteen cases under consideration, from which they have reported seven true bills, all of which are most respectfully submitted.

B G Whitehouse, Foreman Grand Jury; W G Beck, Clerk; Wm Cree, Wm Cornell, H. W Prettyman, P. G Baker, Ed Albright

LOCAL BREVITIES

The canyon road is said to be in extra bad condition.

Oregon City is to have a Fire Department election next Monday.

Trials of criminal cases in the Circuit Court will be commenced to-day.

John McDonald convicted of highway robbery was taken to Salem day before yesterday.

Look out for announcement in the Bulletin to-day that the river has got another foot up.

The plank road mass meeting at Hillsboro Saturday, is said to have been well attended.

During the last week seventy tons was the amount of flour received from the Salem mills.

Madam Props has got into jail this time for 5 days—for bilking a greasey out of three dollars.

Our friend of the Bulletin he of the bleached and parti colored whiskers will have a fine chance to throw himself on the rise of the river.

The original pioneer Hungry Brother, has arrived back from a trip to the interior, and has gravitated directly to his old quarters in the jail.

The thunder rain storm which visited us yesterday morning, began with a flash followed by a crash and then a splash. The last was a success.

The steamer Dixie Thompson from Astoria brought up yesterday a load of the railroad iron that was discharged some days ago by the Clark.

Mr Fulford, next to Mr Waldron a leading actor of the Oro Fino Company, is a typo, and occasionally takes to the cases when he has leisure moments.

A A Smith has ceased to be route agent for the mails on the Oregon and California railroad. John C Mendenhall formerly of Albany has been appointed to fill the place.

AMUSEMENTS

ORO FINO THEATER —The success of Rosedale has been a triumph unprecedented on the Portland stage. For six successive performances it had full houses—the last two or three being literally crammed. The general judgment is that it is by far the best drama produced this season and the public seems in no way tired of it yet. It will be produced again to night.

LITERARY AND MUSICAL —The Good Templars will give an entertainment at their hall to-morrow evening consisting of musical performances, readings, etc. This style of thing is becoming quite the rage. The proceeds are to be applied to the fund for building purposes.

HILLSBORO PLANK ROAD MEETING

PROCEEDINGS OF THE PLANK ROAD MASS MEETING AT THE COURT HOUSE IN HILLSBORO SATURDAY THE 17TH FEBRUARY

HILLSBORO Feb 19 1872

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

A large and enthusiastic meeting was held here to-day at one o'clock. The meeting was called to order by Mr Jacob Stitzel, President, who stated the object of the meeting in a speech of some twenty minutes, after which Mr W D Hare was called on and made a telling speech in favor of the enterprise showing conclusively the great advantages that must result from the building of the road both to Portland and Washington county. He felt confident that the citizens of Washington county were ready for action and would come up with their portion of the amount necessary to ensure the building of the first twenty miles of road. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, the court house was well filled with tax payers from all parts of the county, the majority of whom seemed to express themselves favorably to the enterprise.

After Mr Hare finished his speech Mr Stitzel stated that the committee appointed to solicit subscriptions were present and he hoped gentlemen who were ready to subscribe to the capital stock would have no delicacy about the matter but would come right forward on l[illegible]. The list was then headed by three one thousand dollar subscriptions. Several thousand dollars were added to the list in amounts ranging from $200 up to $500 each. Several other gentlemen then addressed the meeting. The very best of feeling seemed to prevail after the meeting adjourned. In conclusion I would say that we trust the people of Portland will be equally alive to their interests. Let the money be raised at once. Give us this road and we will guarantee that your retail dealers will not be obliged to close their places of business during the winter months for want of custom. Give us this road and we will insure the owners of real estate—those having stores to let—that their buildings will not remain without tenants two thirds of the time. The word is "Go on, we will meet you half way."

OCCASIONAL

THE GRAND JURY REPORT —Our Grand Juries seem to be emulating and aspiring after the reputation of average coroner's juries. The last one has come pretty near the mark too. It gravely recommends that the County Commissioners appoint a commission to examine and report upon the expenditures in the Sheriff's and Clerk's offices. Considering that there are no expenditures in those offices, except such as are authorized by the County Commissioners, the proposition amounts to this: That the Commissioners appoint a committee to examine the work of the County Commissioners, and report to the County Commissioners what the County Commissioners have been doing. If the County Commissioners don't know what the County Commissioners are about, they ought to appoint the nosing committee by all means.

CELEBRATION OF ST PATRICK'S DAY —The Committees of the Hibernian Benevolent Society, the Father Matthew Temperance Society, Emmet Guard and Montgomery Guard, met yesterday for the purpose of making arrangements for the celebration of St Patrick's Day. Mr P. O'C New[ell] was selected for President of the day, Capt H. Cahalin, Marshal, and George K Sheil, Orator of the Day. It is, we are informed, intended to get up this celebration on a more extended scale than was ever before attempted in this city.

PORTLAND AHEAD —It is said that one hundred and forty two arrests were made during January in this city, or within eight of the number made in San Francisco during the same time. It is clear that the San Francisco chaps are a dull and plodding lot, compared with our "perlice." It may be however, that the San Francisco chief, drawing a handsome per diem for the board of his prisoners, which would account somewhat for the comparative difference.

BODY FOUND IN THE RIVER —The Herald of Sunday says: "Yesterday afternoon between four and five o'clock, the body of a man was found on the bank of the river, about seven miles below the city. The body had been long in the water, and was so much decomposed that recognition was impossible. The man was dressed in the uniform of a soldier. No papers were found on the body."

FROM OREGON CITY —The steamer E N Cooke came down from Oregon City last evening with one hundred and eighty tons of flour from the Standard Mills. The officers of the Cooke report no damage to stock at the above mills. The river was rising when they left Oregon City. The steamer will not return to-day unless urgent business requires it.

DELAYED AGAIN —The Hayward was detained Saturday several hours on account of another slide of earth upon the portage railroad at the Cascades.

RED MEN'S CELEBRATION —It is stated that the Improved Order of Red Men will celebrate the anniversary of Washington's birth day according to their usual custom.

THE UMATILLA HOUSE at The Dalles is now completed and furnished in every respect unsurpassed. The office is the most cheerful and pleasant in the State and the dining hall is unequaled. The rooms are all newly furnished. The house has twelve suites of rooms with stoves in them for families. The new house stands much higher than the old one. The ceilings are four feet higher, which adds greatly to the cheerfulness of the rooms. The table is kept in a style to correspond fully with the appointments.

LITTLE HOMES!

WE HAVE OBTAINED MANY TESTIMONIALS, which appear in the WEEKLY OREGONIAN for the purpose of answering once for all the many inquiries in relation to our LITTLE HOMES. We desire to show to strangers, through men of known integrity in this community, that they are all we claim for them. [illegible] in the future growth of Portland in the building of Railroads, and Bridges over the Willamette—which is merely a question of time—and in the fact that in less than one mile distant City Blocks (200 feet square) are selling for from ten to thirty thousand dollars, and in less than two-and-a-half miles four direct lines blocks are selling as high as $200,000 per block. Just think of it! $50 per acre for land and ½ miles distant $200,000 per acre! New York city is over twenty miles in length and six miles wide and many other cities in the United States are built that long and quite as wide and if Portland becomes a metropolis she will require this land for business purposes. Thirty years ago we could have purchased a section of land where the business portion of Chicago now stands for $10 per acre—$10 for a five acre tract. Thirty years ago we could have purchased the town site of Portland for a Cayuse pony—but wouldn't have the pony. Twenty years ago a solitary individual with neither money nor friends, found himself in Portland without a red. He purchased a basket 'on tick,' and filled it with oranges on the same terms, and went to peddling. Twenty long, eventful years have since elapsed. Still that sturdy old pioneer has stuck to Portland and worked his way through thick and thin; and now where do you think he is?—in the poor house and owes for the basket! But to our

Victoria's Heir

[illegible] table estimate of the Prince which has been given to the public [illegible] the war that contributed [illegible] of March 1872 by Mr Justin M[illegible] the present tenant of the New [illegible] who [illegible] information or fairness will [illegible] be disputed [illegible] the day of the prince's wed[illegible] the public opinion of the prince [illegible] that date

[illegible] when there were stories and reports [illegible] which ascribed to the prince habits and tendencies not likely to promote the do[illegible] happiness of a delicate and refined [illegible] who was hardly more than a mere child in years. Indeed there was already considerable doubt in the public mind as to the personal character of the Prince of Wales. He certainly did not look a very intellectual or refined sort of person even [illegible] and [illegible] least were [illegible] to think him as Steerforth says "[illegible] lover [illegible] rather a chuck[illegible] to get such a girl [illegible] certainly a breath of serious distrust abroad

And of his personal appearance at the time he says

Those who saw the Prince of Wales when he visited this country would surely fail to recognize the slender fair haired rather graceful youth of that day in the heavy fat stolid prematurely bald elderly young man of this. It would not be easy to see in any assembly a more stupid looking man than the Prince of Wales is now. On horseback he shows to best advantage. He rides well, and the pleasure he takes in riding lends something of animation to his usually inexpressive face. But when his eyes and features lapse into their habitual condition of indolent good natured stolid repose all light of intellect seems to have been banished. The outline of the head and face and the general expression seemed to me of late to be growing every day more and more like the head and face of George the III. Anybody who may happen to have a shilling or a half crown of George the III's time can see on the coin a very fair presentment of the countenance of the present heir apparent of the English throne. Whether the Prince of Wales resembles George IV in character and tastes or not, he certainly does not resemble him in face. Even a court sycophant could not pretend to see beauty or grace in our present prince

I think that to the eye of the cynic or the satirist the Prince of Wales shows to [illegible] advantage when he sits in his box at an advanced hour of some rather heavy [illegible] opera, or has to endure a long succession of speeches at a formal public dinner. The heavy head droops, the heavy jaws hang the languid eyes close the heir apparent sinks into a doze. Loyalty itself can see nothing dignified or kingly in him then. I have watched him thus as he sat in his box during some high-class and to him doubtless, very heavy performance at the Italian opera, and have thought that at times he might remind irreverent and disloyal observers of Pickwick's immortal fat boy

Of a prince, who is to be the head and ruler of an empire much is to be observed as to the tendencies of his patronage, and we read

All that he could do by countenance and patronage to encourage a debauching and degrading style of theatric entertainment, he has done. He is said to be fond of the singing of the vulgar and low buffoons of the music hall, and to have had such persons brought personally to his residence, Marlborough house, to sing for him * * * He constantly visits theaters at which his wife and sisters are never seen, and in which it would be idle to deny that there are actresses who have made themselves conspicuous objects of popular scandal * * * Night after night, even during the long and lamentable illness of his young wife, he visited such theaters and gazed upon "those prodigies of myriad nakedness." Likewise did [illegible] delight in the performance of [illegible]

And of the essential selfishness of the man, Mr McCarthy says

Unless his face, his head, his manners in public, and the [illegible] he so conspicuously manifests wholly belie him, the heir to the British throne is a remarkably dull young man. He cannot deliver any decent imitation of intelligence the little speeches which Arthur Helps or somebody else usually gets up for him when the exigencies of the situation compel the prince to make a speech in public. He is [illegible] to be [illegible] even in his pleasures, and has managed to get himself deeply into debt without being supposed to have wasted any of his substance in obedience to a generous impulse. The prince inherited a splendid property. His prudent father had looked well after the revenues of the duchy of Cornwall, which is the appanage of the Prince of Wales (even in some very dingy parts of London you may, if you hire a house find that you have the Prince of Wales for a landlord) and the property of the heir must have been raised to its very highest value. Yet it is notorious that a very few years after he had attained his majority, Albert Edward had contrived to get deeply immersed in debt * * * But this much is certain, that the same almost universal rumor which attributes coarse and dissipated habits to the Prince of Wales attributes to him likewise a mean and stingy parsimony where aught save his own pleasure is concerned, and even there if by any possibility the pleasure can be obtained without superfluous cost

* * * * * * * *

This then is the character which the son of the Queen of England bears in the estimation of the vast majority of his mother's subjects. Almost any and every one you meet in London will tell you as something beyond doubt that the Prince of Wales is dull, stingy, coarse and profligate

Mirage of the Desert

The Virginia (Nev) Enterprise of the 3d inst contains the annexed interesting description of a mirage

A friend sends us the following in regard to a mirage he and a prospecting companion witnessed on the Forty mile desert, beyond Ragtown, one day last summer. The desert named is a level plain of alkali as white hard and smooth in many places as a plastered wall * * * We were toiling through the wide desert and had traversed half the distance across it when an exclamation of surprise uttered by Williams caused me to look before. Apparently in a second the hold face of the landscape had changed. Instinctively and without a word we both drew rein and halted. Before us, where but a moment previous had stretched the white glittering sterile desert bounded by a high coast line of rugged hills burnt to various hues, expanded a broad and placid lake beyond which was seen the semblance of villas and large castellated piles. Some of the latter occupied bold promontories, while others crowned small islands which seemed to float upon the calm surface of the lake. Tall trees of tropical appearance—yet unlike anything I had ever seen in any country—reared their heads above the castles and clustered in groves about the villas. To render the deception more complete all that was seen on the seeming shore—castles, trees and villas—was seen perfectly mirrored in the lake. Even upon that shore of the lake nearest us was to be seen the work of enchantment wrought by the mirage. There were no castles nor villas but there was everywhere a tropical luxuriance of vegetation—trees loaded or rather overloaded with the most wonderful masses of bright green foliage and grasses that towered aloft and waved to the breeze like some African jungle. A small flock of crows that had settled near the margin of the lake seemed at least fifteen feet in height and as they walked about in their queer swinging way with necks swaying to and fro presented a weird appearance. But these are appearances which have frequently been noted and described. What I desire most particularly to mention is what now took place and of which I have as yet seen no account in descriptions of mirage phenomena. As we gazed upon the [illegible] I began to glide rapidly [illegible] the villas castles and groves and down down they went beneath its glassy surface while beyond new villas and castles ran up. Those were different in form and location from the first, but we only had time to note them slightly before they melted down and disappeared under the advancing waters of the lake new and still newer wonders rising up on the receding shore. Now, as suddenly as the former change the land [illegible] advancing upon the glassy bosom of the lake pushing forward groves villas and castles so rapidly that these objects seemed rolling over and over each other and tossed here and there as though by the throes of a mighty earthquake. The land was then in turn [illegible] back by the water and these changes soon became so rapid that they could hardly follow them reminding us of the rapid shifting of the sides of a magic lantern. This was succeeded by the sudden lifting up of the whole scene when the mountains were shown in their natural shape but inverted [illegible] above them rose up moving columns of purple and white glittering light closely resembling what is seen in brilliant northern lights. There were some other curious changes, but the only other we will note was that of a second and a third and a fourth inverted range appearing above the first. As we advanced upon the scene it held its ground though with many kaleidoscopic changes until we were close upon the fairy realm. The road we were following though well worn and [illegible] was cut off from our sight by the lake at a distance of but 300 yards ahead, indeed we moved much nearer before the illusion of the immediate presence of the lake was dispelled. Then the whole scene was suddenly shifted far to our right where it quivered a moment and was gone—only waves of heat shimmering over the level desert as above a furnace remained

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

SATURDAY EVENING Feb [illegible]

Gold in New York 110¼

Portland Legal Tender [illegible] 90c [illegible] 91c selling

The steamship Oriflamme Floyd master arrived last night from San Francisco. Copy of manifest [illegible] below. She is announced to leave here Tuesday [illegible] at 4 o'clock for San Francisco

It is thought the steamship Idaho will leave San Francisco bound up, Tuesday 20th

The bark Webfoot is chartered [illegible] for San Francisco with bolts etc at Rainier

A copy of the manifest of the bark H W A[illegible] cargo is given below. She sailed from San Francisco on the [illegible] and is consequently now due

Private advices from San Francisco state that [illegible] Pepper cannot be handled for less than [illegible] cents in invoice lots. Coffee is firm with prices expected to advance on [illegible] mption of [illegible] as orders are now on the market for several large invoices for the East. Grain Bags, although too early for use are being [illegible] for [illegible] purposes. One importer closed out an invoice of 50 000 at 16 cents cash net

From our San Francisco commercial exchanges we obtain the following

The demand for Chemicals largely exceeds the supply. Imports for some time past have been light, and in consequence stocks are running short and prices steadily advancing. Sal Soda held firmly at 3c. Bi Carb Soda, Soda Caustic, etc very scarce and wanted at high figures

Exports of Fish include an invoice of Salmon 505 bbls 200 hf bbls and 500 cs to Melbourne, ex Jubilee; also 923 bxs Smoked Herring by same vessel. The market for Salmon is over supplied with barrels and prices rule low and in the absence of any round sales continue as heretofore

The most noticeable feature of the week is the importation of 241 pkgs Australian Butter by steamship Moses Taylor via Honolulu. So far as we are advised it has not yet been placed but is held at 13@20c. It is in firkins, and resembles old Western and is worth perhaps 12½@15c duty paid, which is 4c ₩ lb. During the week two closing out sales of Butter have been made one of 30 firkins prime New York State, and the other 100 firkins old Western within our range. Cheese [illegible] fair supply with a moderate jobbing trade

There is but [illegible] cargoes to the United Kingdom are both low and nominal. Tonnage in port is now plentiful and so far as we are advised there is now 118,000 tons en route to this city

Mail advices from San Francisco under date of [illegible] 15th give the following

There is a decidedly better feeling to-day in Wheat occasioned by the arrival of several large ships which are disposed to take grain charters at less rates than have been ruling. Charters have been made at £3 10s. Shippers offer $2 15 for Wheat and have paid $2 20 for round lots also [illegible] ship, while millers are forced to pay $2 25 for choice White Wheat. Market looks very firm

The above was fully confirmed by our exchanges. Any one can at once perceive that shippers cannot afford to pay any 2 cents ₩ lb here and save themselves by shipping to San Francisco

Caution to the Unfortunate

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and [illegible] who, with bogus sworn to certificates, dupe [illegible] some of the self styled doctors, whose [illegible] found in the daily and weekly newspapers of [illegible] circus and other places, are tradesmen and [illegible] lazy too work at their trades. Some are [illegible] makers newspaper carriers intelligence office etc. Look over the San Francisco Directory and not find their Medical Institutes in it, but you their former occupations in it. Look at the for 1862 and 1863. The only way to avoid [illegible] to make inquiry—it will cost you nothing, [illegible] you many regrets for as advertising [illegible] cases out of ten are bogus there is no [illegible] any of them until you know who and what [illegible] Dr Gibbon does not deceive people by [illegible] titles, certificates, pretended patients letters, Gibbon will refer persons who may call at [illegible] his ability to treat diseases that he profess[illegible]
